JURY TRIAL DEMANDED

COMPLAINT

1. Plaintiff Colormasters, LLC ("Colormasters") is an Alabama limited liability company headquartered in Albertville, Marshall County, Alabama. Colormasters is in the business of manufacturing flexible packaging with printing and designs as determined by the customer.

2. Defendant Research Solutions Group, Inc. ("Research Solutions") is an Alabama corporation headquartered in Pelham, Alabama. Research Solutions provides solvents for use in and with the inks provided to Colormasters by the other Defendants named herein.

3. Defendant American Inks & Coatings Corp. is a foreign corporation that sold inks to Colormasters at its facility in Albertville, Marshall County, Alabama for many years up to and including 2016. Defendant "ABC" is that entity that sold inks to Colormasters d/b/a American Inks and whose exact identity is not known but who will be added by amendment. Collectively, American Inks & Coatings Corp. and ABC are referred to as "AIC".

4. Defendants Flint Group North America Corporation and Flint Ink North America Corporation are foreign corporations that purchased or acquired the business of AIC in 2016 and then began selling inks to Colormasters at its facility in Albertville, Marshall County, Alabama. Defendant "XYZ" is that entity that has sold inks to Colormasters at its facility in Albertville, Marshall County, Alabama since Flint Group acquired AIC and whose exact identity is not known but who will be added by amendment. Collectively, Flint Group North America Corporation, Flint Ink North America Corporation, and "XYZ" are referred to as "Flint".

5. Jurisdiction and venue are proper in Marshall County, Alabama, as all defendants do business and work there and many of the acts, omissions, events and occurrences giving rise to this lawsuit occurred in Marshall County, Alabama.

Factual Background

6. Colormasters is in the business of manufacturing flexible wrap and packaging for customers, including but not limited to plastic packaging for things such as bottled water, soft drinks, food products, bottled beverages, and other items. The flexible packaging is made to include printing on the plastic film. The printing requires the use of ink products.

7. For many years, Colormasters purchased its inks from AIC. AIC was responsible for quality, viscosity, color, and all other characteristics of the ink. AIC agreed that it would insure that the ink products worked successfully in the applications required by Colormasters and its customers and that the inks were fit for the particular purposes for which they were intended to be used.

8. At times, solvents are required for the inks. Colormasters purchased solvents from defendant Research Group, with the purchases being for solvents as specified by AIC. AIC would then use the solvents to achieve proper viscosities with AIC inks. Research Group knew that the solvents it sold were intended for use with inks to apply to flexible packaging manufactured by Colormasters, and Research Group was responsible for providing good and merchantable solvents suitable for the purposes of batching inks for use by Colormasters. AIC assumed responsibility for proper use of the solvents in “batching” the final ink products supplied to Colormasters.

9. In approximately April 2016, Colormasters began receiving complaints from one of its largest customers, Absopure Water Company (“Absopure”), that the white ink on the flexible packaging was yellowing. Other problems soon ensued, including ink buildup on the rollers as the packaging film was sent through the shrink tunnels where the packaging becomes a form of “shrink wrap” for packages of bottled water. AIC was promptly notified and the problem was determined to be with the AIC ink, vehicle or other components. Solvents provided by Research Group were also alleged to be a factor in the ink failures.

10. Absopure eventually made a claim against Colormasters, which was settled for approximately $1.4 million. This financial settlement was reasonable under the circumstances. In addition, Absopure began to decrease the share of its business that it formerly gave to Colormasters, as a result of the ink problems, and has given that business to one or more competitors of Colormasters. This loss of business would not have occurred but for the problems associated with the defective AIC ink products and components. This loss of business is a damage to Colormasters.

11. The AIC inks on the film sold by Colormasters to Absopure were delivered and prepared by AIC using solvents supplied by Research Group. AIC owed a duty to Colormasters to insure that the inks met all the quality and other requirements necessary to ensure that the inks properly performed on the Colormasters product as used by Absopure. AIC breached its duties and proximately and foreseeably caused damages to Colormasters.

12. In or around May 2016, Flint purchased or acquired AIC and its business. As part thereof, Flint took over the supply of ink to Colormasters and provided a team of employees (the “ink team”) at Colormasters to insure that Flint inks worked correctly with Colormasters’ products.

13. Colormasters was concerned about Flint replacing AIC as the ink supplier for Colormasters. In an effort to ensure that it kept the AIC ink business with Colormasters, Flint represented that Flint would be responsible for any losses or damages caused by AIC supplied inks, that Flint would also be responsible if there were any losses or damages caused by Flint supplied inks, that Flint would maintain its ink team to ensure that the ink products it provided would work successfully in the applications required by Colormasters and its customers, and that Flint would stand behind its ink products. Colormasters reasonably relied on these representations and purchased ink products from Flint. If Flint had even remotely hinted that it would not stand behind both its inks and those provided by its predecessor in interest, Colormasters would have sourced its ink business to others.

14. From time to time, Flint uses solvents provided by defendant Research Group to try to achieve proper viscosities with Flint inks. Again, defendant Research Group knew at all times that Colormasters was purchasing solvent from Research Group for use with inks to apply to flexible packaging manufactured by Colormasters. Flint was responsible for proper use of the solvents in “batching” the final ink products supplied to Colormasters. However, Research Group was responsible for providing good and merchantable solvents suitable for the purposes of batching inks for use by Colormasters.

15. The ink products supplied by Flint have failed in certain applications, including but not limited to problems at Colormasters' Medlock, Smith Road and other facilities, as well as continued problems with Colormasters' customers, including but not limited to Niagara, Silver Springs Bottled Water Co., and Absopure. As a direct, foreseeable and proximate result, Colormasters has been injured and damaged.

16. Despite demand, Flint has failed and refused to indemnify Colormasters or to otherwise make Colormasters whole for the damages resulting from the AIC inks or from the Flint inks. Colormasters has incurred costs and damages with its customers as well as both direct and indirect costs as a result.

Count One—Breach of Contract by AIC

17. Colormasters adopts the preceding allegations of this complaint.

18. AIC breached its contracts and agreements with Colormasters.

19. Colormasters was foreseeably damaged as a result.

20. Colormasters has not breached any duty or obligation owed pursuant to its contracts and agreements with AIC.

WHEREFORE, Colormasters demands judgment against AIC for compensatory damages, plus interest and costs.

Count Two—Negligence by AIC

21. Colormasters adopts the preceding allegations of this complaint.

22. AIC owed duties to Colormasters including the duty to provide good and merchantable ink products that were suitable for the particular purposes and applications required by Colormasters and its customers.

23. AIC negligently breached the duties it owed to Colormasters.

24. As a proximate result, Colormasters was damaged.

WHEREFORE, Colormasters demands judgment against AIC for compensatory damages, plus interest and costs.

Count Three--Wantonness by AIC

25. Colormasters adopts the preceding allegations of this complaint.

26. AIC owed duties to Colormasters including the duty to provide good and merchantable ink products that were suitable for the particular purposes and applications required by Colormasters and its customers.

27. AIC wantonly breached the duties it owed to Colormasters.

28. As a proximate result, Colormasters was damaged.

WHEREFORE, Colormasters demands judgment against AIC for compensatory and punitive damages, plus interest and costs.

Count Four--Breach of Warranty by AIC

29. Colormasters adopts the preceding allegations of this complaint.

30. AIC warranted that the ink it supplied to Colormasters was of good and merchantable quality and was fit for the particular purposes intended or required by Colormasters and its customers.

31. AIC breached the warranties owed to Colormasters.

32. As a proximate and foreseeable result, Colormasters was damaged.

WHEREFORE, Colormasters demands judgment against AIC for compensatory damages, plus interest and costs.

Count Five—Breach of Contract by Flint

33. Colormasters adopts the preceding allegations of this complaint.

34. Flint breached its contracts and agreements with Colormasters.

35. Colormasters was foreseeably damaged as a result.

WHEREFORE, Colormasters demands judgment against Flint for compensatory damages, plus interest and costs.

Count Six—Negligence by Flint

36. Colormasters adopts the preceding allegations of this complaint.

37. Flint owed duties to Colormasters including the duty to provide good and merchantable ink products that were suited for the particular purposes and applications required by Colormasters and its customers.

38. Flint negligently breached the duties it owed to Colormasters.

39. As a proximate result, Colormasters was damaged.

WHEREFORE, Colormasters demands judgment against Flint for compensatory damages plus interest and costs.

Count Seven--Wantonness by Flint

40. Colormasters adopts the preceding allegations of this complaint.

41. Flint owed duties to Colormasters including the duty to provide good and merchantable ink products that were suited for the particular purposes and applications required by Colormasters and its customers.

42. Flint wantonly breached the duties it owed to Colormasters.

43. As a proximate result, Colormasters was damaged.

WHEREFORE, Colormasters demands judgment against Flint for compensatory and punitive damages, plus interest and costs.

Count Eight--Breach of Warranty by Flint

44. Colormasters adopts the preceding allegations of this complaint.

45. Flint warranted that the ink it supplied to Colormasters was of good and merchantable quality and was fit for the particular purposes intended or required by Colormasters and its customers.

46. Flint breached the warranties owed to Colormasters.

47. As a proximate and foreseeable result, Colormasters was damaged.

WHEREFORE, Colormasters demands judgment against Flint for compensatory damages, plus interest and costs.

Count Nine—Fraudulent Misrepresentation by Flint

48. Colormasters adopts the preceding allegations of this complaint.

49. Flint made misrepresentations to Colormasters. These misrepresentations were made deliberately, and in an effort to keep the Colormasters business following Flint's acquisition of AIC.

50. Flint represented that it would warrant, stand behind, and be responsible and liable for damages caused by inks that Colormasters had purchased from AIC. Said representation was false when made and was made with the intent to deceive. Flint made this fraudulent misrepresentation in an effort to keep the Colormasters business following Flint's acquisition of AIC.

51. Flint represented that it had the knowledge, products, personnel, and expertise to provide Colormasters with inks that would satisfactorily perform and meet the requirements and applications of Colormasters and its customers. This representation was made recklessly and/or was false when made, or was made with willful or reckless disregard of its veracity. Flint made this fraudulent misrepresentation in an effort to keep the Colormasters business following the Flint acquisition of AIC.

52. Colormasters reasonably relied on Flint's misrepresentations and purchased ink from Flint. Colormasters has purchased millions of dollars of ink from Flint in reliance on Flint's misrepresentations. Flint's inks and/or the components thereof have failed and have caused damages to Colormasters, and Flint has failed and refused to indemnify or hold Colormasters harmless or to otherwise stand good for Flint's defective products. Flint has also failed to indemnify or hold Colormasters harmless or to pay restitution for defective or substandard inks provided by AIC, contrary to Flint's representations.

53. Colormasters has been proximately damaged as a result of its reasonable reliance on Flint's misrepresentations.

WHEREFORE, Colormasters demands judgment against Flint for compensatory and punitive damages, plus interest and costs.

Count Ten—Negligent Misrepresentation by Flint

54. Colormasters adopts the preceding allegations of this complaint.

55. Flint made misrepresentations to Colormasters. If not deliberate or reckless, these misrepresentations were made negligently, and as part of Flint's effort to keep the Colormasters business following the Flint acquisition of AIC.

56. Flint represented that it would warrant, stand behind, and be responsible and liable for damages caused by inks that Colormasters had purchased from AIC. Said representation was false when made and was made negligently or without regard to its veracity. This representation was false when made.

57. Flint represented that it had the knowledge, products, personnel, and expertise to provide Colormasters with inks that would satisfactorily perform and meet the requirements and applications of Colormasters and its customers. Said representation was false when made and was made negligently or without regard to its veracity. This representation was false when made.

58. Colormasters reasonably relied on Flint's misrepresentations and purchased its ink requirements from Flint. Colormasters has purchased millions of dollars of ink from Flint in reliance on Flint's misrepresentations. Flint's inks have failed and have caused damages to Colormasters, and Flint has failed and refused to indemnify or hold Colormasters harmless or to otherwise stand good for Flint's defective products. Flint has also failed to indemnify or hold Colormasters harmless or to pay restitution for defective or substandard inks provided by AIC, contrary to Flint's representations.

59. Colormasters has been proximately damaged as a result of its reasonable reliance on Flint's misrepresentations.

WHEREFORE, Colormasters demands judgment against Flint for compensatory damages, plus interest and costs.

Count Eleven—Breach of Implied Warranty of Fitness for Particular Purpose
(Research Group)

60. Colormasters adopts the preceding allegations of this Complaint.

61. Colormasters purchases and applies inks (and ink components) to flexible packaging manufactured by Colormasters. The inks used by Colormasters are comprised of, inter alia, pigments, vehicles and solvents.

62. From time to time, the ink manufacturing process of AIC and Flint uses solvents provided by Research Group as a component in said inks.

63. At all times relevant hereto, Research Group knew of the particular purpose for which its solvents were required for use by Colormasters, and that Colormasters was relying on the skill and or judgment of Research Group to provide the correct solvent(s).

64. Research Group impliedly warranted that the solvents provided were fit for the particular purpose of making ink products that would perform satisfactorily and in a good and merchantable manner in the uses and applications of Colormasters and/or its customers.

65. To the extent that the ink failures described above are not solely the fault and responsibility of AIC and Flint, the ink failures are attributable to breach of warranties owed to Colormasters by Research Group.

66. Any limitations or disclaimers of warranties, if enforced according to their terms, would result in the Research Group warranties failing of their essential purpose. The breaches of warranty resulted in foreseeable and proximate damages that were not and cannot be remedied through limited warranties or warranties that disclaim liability or remedies.

67. As a proximate result, Colormasters was damaged.

WHEREFORE, Colormasters demands judgment against Research Group for compensatory damages, plus interest and costs.

Count Twelve—Negligence of Research Group

68. Colormasters adopts the preceding allegations of this Complaint.

69. Defendant Research Group provided solvents that it knew were intended for use in inks used by and in the business of Colormasters.

70. Defendant Research Group knew that the makeup and composition of the inks is critical to the business of Colormasters, and that the solvents provided by Research Group were a necessary and critical component in that process. As a result, Research Group owed a duty to provide only high quality solvents meeting the specifications required.

71. To the extent that the ink failures described above are not solely the fault and responsibility of AIC and Flint, the ink failures are attributable to breach of duty owed to Colormasters and negligence on the part of Research Group.

72. As a proximate result of such breaches, Colormasters was damaged.

WHEREFORE, Colormasters demands judgment against Research Group for compensatory damages, plus interest and costs.

RESPONSE:

15. Produce any documents reflecting, referring to, embodying, memorializing or otherwise relating to any claim or claims made by Flint under any policy of insurance providing "recall coverage" or similar coverage where such claim or claims arose from, in part or in whole, any claim made by Colormasters against Flint.

RESPONSE:

16. Produce any documents reflecting, referring to, embodying, memorializing or otherwise relating to any claim or claims made by AIC under any policy of insurance providing "recall coverage” or similar coverage where such claim or claims arose from, in part or in whole, any claim made by Colormasters against AIC.

RESPONSE:

17. Produce each and every policy of insurance purchased by AIC per the terms of AIC’s agreement with Colormasters dated June 30, 2015 and providing in pertinent part as follows:

“Going forward American Ink agrees to carry errors and omissions insurance and recall insurance that is sufficient to cover and exceed any terms of sales agreements that Colormasters customers may required of Colormasters... .”

RESPONSE:

18. Produce each and every document reflecting, referring to, embodying, memorializing or otherwise relating to AIC’s compliance with the following term of AIC’s agreement with Colormasters dated June 30, 2015: “American Ink agrees that it understands the requirements and test procedures that meet or exceed those of shrink film and other inks and American Ink understands that American Ink is responsible to test its inks on Colormasters films to insure and prevent any ink related issues.”Going forward American Ink agrees to carry errors and omissions insurance and recall insurance that is sufficient to cover and exceed any terms of sales agreements that Colormasters customers may required of Colormasters... .”

RESPONSE:

19. Produce any and all documents which you contend support any affirmative defense you have asserted to Colormasters’ claims in the above-captioned litigation.

RESPONSE:

20. Produce all materials provided by you to any expert witness engaged by you to formulate opinions and testify in this lawsuit, such expert’s resume or curriculum, and any and all reports prepared by such expert which embody his or her opinions he or she expects to testify to in this lawsuit.

RESPONSE:

21. Produce all documents that embody, refer or relate to communications to, with, or between or among Flint and AIC (to include their agents, employees and representatives) regarding any demands for defense or indemnity or any responses thereto with respect to the claims that ink supplied by AIC or by Flint to Colormasters was defective.

RESPONSE:

22. Produce a copy of the agreement, including attachments and exhibits, pursuant to which Flint acquired AIC.

RESPONSE:

23. Produce copies of all correspondence, reports, memoranda, emails, text messages, reports, notes, purchase orders, contracts, agreements, or other documents evidencing or related to any communications or testing or studies or analyses relating to any independent laboratories or testing companies performed on either ink, film or otherwise with respect to the Colormasters claims that ink supplied by either AIC or Flint was defective.

RESPONSE:

24. Produce copies of all communications (internal or otherwise) related to the issue of whether ink provided by Flint allegedly failed to work properly with the Colormasters film in any application, or for any Colormasters customer.

RESPONSE:

25. Produce copies of all communications (internal or otherwise) related to the issue of whether ink provided by AIC allegedly failed to work properly with the Colormasters film in any application, or for any Colormasters customer.
